Tax man befuddles the farmers

LIVERMORE — A crowd of bewildered ranchers and farmers gathered at the Farm Bureau building Tuesday night to discuss the fine print of their property taxes with Alameda County Tax Assessor Don Hutchinson.

In filibuster fashion, Hutchinson answered questions fired at him by a five-member panel which was mediated by County Supervisor Valerie Raymond.

The audience looked puzzled as the assessor elaborated on land value, property improvements and no growth specifications.

When one farmer was asked if he understood Hutchinson, the farmer replied, "No. I've heard him once before and he talks around in circles. I went to one of these meetings six years ago and went away more confused than when I came. I don't think he wants you to understand what's going on."

Hutchinson, who has been working for the county since 1951, debated for three hours on subjects ranging from the drought "risk factor" to land assessment as determined by the Williamson Act.

According to Hutchinson, a "risk factor" is set by his office and is used to make adjustments in land value accounting for unusual conditions such as a frost or the drought which lowers the crop potential of agricultural land.

"The risk factor has to be built up to recognize the drought," he said. "The higher the risk factor the lower the assessed value of the property. This is basically the same story when the frost hit the eucalyptus trees in the Berkeley Hills."

The risk factor only applies to land covered by the Williamson Act.

This act, also known as the California Land Conservation Act, is a state law which permits a county to put agricultural land into a reserve. Property in the reserve is assessed at its agricultural value instead of its market value.

This could mean the difference of land valued at $7,500 per acre which is not in the reserve as opposed to land valued at $500 per acre which is covered by the Williamson Act.

For land not included in the Williamson Act, market values are based on what developers are willing to pay for the property. However, if the land is included in the Williamson Act, assessment is based on its agricultural value and whatever improvements are on the property.

Hutchinson pointed out that improvements are not listed separately on the assessment notice.

"We do not value the improvements," Hutchinson said. "We do not value the land — we value the total unit."

When a developer offers to buy land from a rancher the terms are based on an option whereas the rancher retains a partial payment regardless of whether the deal goes through. Ranchers contend that the option does not represent the true market value of their property. Hutchinson disagreed claiming that an option purchase does represent the true market value.

When asked if "no growth areas" change property assessment, Hutchinson nodded his head such areas are taken into consideration when evaluating property.

"This year we're going to try and get the assessment notices out by April 21," he said. Any discrepancies with the notice should be taken care of before June 26.

Even though a formal appeal can be filed, Supervisor Raymond said, "It is probably better to work things out on an informal basis with the assessor's office prior to taking the appeals route." "The record shows about one per cent end up as appeals cases," Hutchinson said. "Of that one per cent about 65 to 70 per cent do get a reduction." "Those who feel they are getting the run-around with the assessor's office," said Raymond, "should call me toll free at 846-3277."

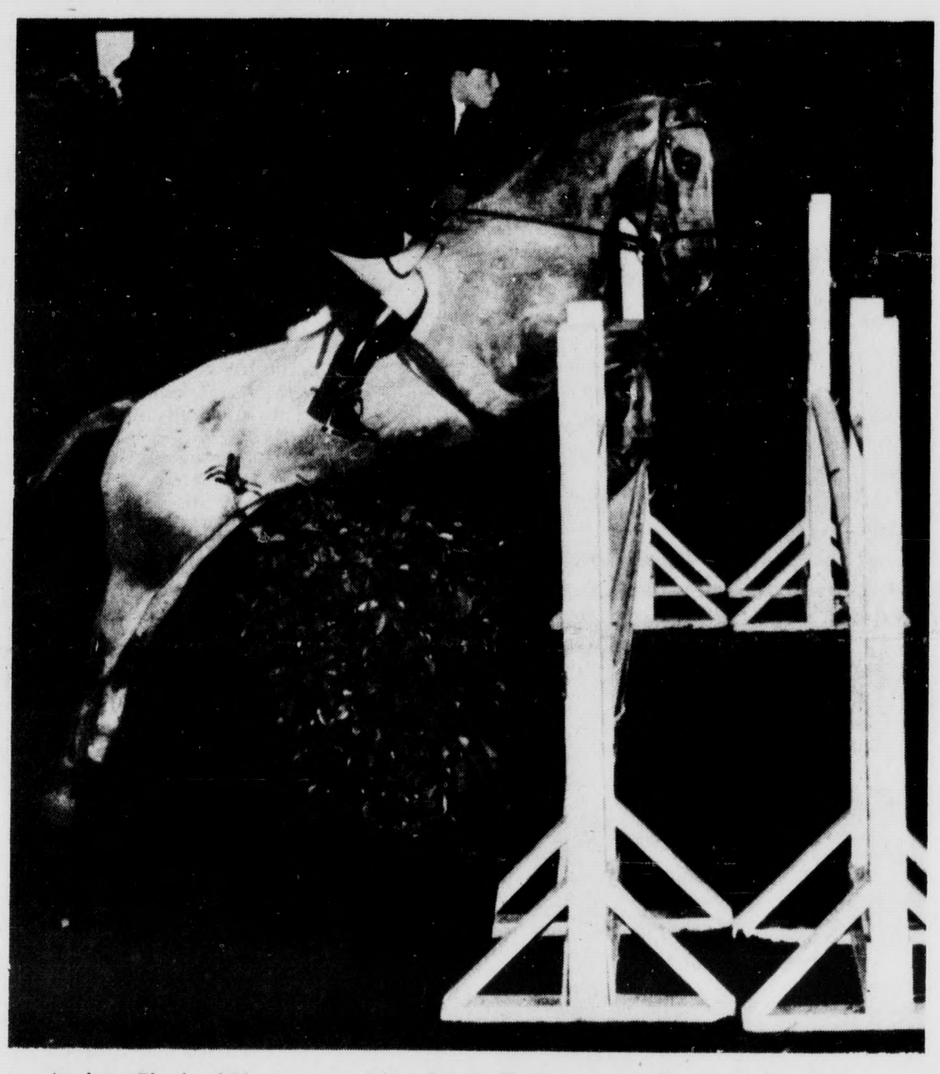
National Velvet it's not

Tension, toil of the Grand National



Andrea Fleck of Pleasanton takes Snow Bunny over a fence at Cow Palace.

Dressed in faded overalls, Amy Leider perched cross - legged on a front row seat at the Cow Palace and wolfed a hot dog.

Soft, innocuous music was playing over the loudspeaker. In the arena, a girl was easing her powerful white thoroughbred over eight three - foot fences. It looked effortless, until they cantered close enough for observers to hear the horse panting and see the strained look on the girl's face.

"She got left," Amy observed in the middle of a bite, as rider met saddle an instant too late after a jump.

The girl's form had been nearly perfect, but the single flaw cost her the contest in the storied Junior Grand National horse show in San Francisco.

In spite of her casual appearance, 12 - year - old Amy was watching the show like a hawk, sizing up the competition. She and three other Valley students were competing against some of the finest young riders and some of the most expensive horses in the West — and winning.

Amador Dist. teachers OK new contract

Amador Valley Joint High School District teachers have ratified a contract proposal for 1976-78 by a 128-41 vote and erased any possibility of a strike.

Meeting in general session at Shannon Park Community Center in Dublin Wedneday afternoon, teachers heard a capsule review of the contract from teacher unit president Dave Woolworth and comments from members of the negotiating team, headed by Enoch Haga.

Word of ratification was relayed to the Amador district administration by Gary Poulos of the negotiating team. Members of the team and Poulos have been holding early morning strategy sessions in recent weeks, as have the Amador board.

Culmination of the 10 months of negotiations actually started April 1 with the board's "final" contract proposal to teachers.

Poulos and Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel, have held one-to-one negotiation sessions to work out key sections and wording of the pact.

Teachers won the point to have salary and health and welfare benefits re-negotiated for 1977-78. A formal proposal from the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association (AVSEA) on these points is expected at May's meeting of the Amador school board.

At a representative council meeting at Shannon Park Tuesday, reps voted 13-10 to recommend ratification of a contract to the general membership.

Teachers were apprised of the terms of the contract and the pivotal vote via flyers placed in their boxes at school Wednesday morning.

There are approximately 212 members in the bargaining unit, which includes teachers at Dublin, Amador Valley, Foothill, and Valley.

The board had offered limited binding arbitration and a four per cent salary increase. Specific wording in the section concerning arbitration says, "Binding arbitration shall be utilized if there is no substantial impact on the district."

Both Krause and Woolworth, weary from months of negotiating, expressed happiness that the process had finally been concluded.

Krause said there's a possibility the board would schedule a special meeting to act on ratification. The board held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday and, among other things, briefly reviewed a study budget for 1977-78. A budget study session will be held the 26th to review the document in detail.

Teachers had previously set tonight at midnight as the deadline for the negotiating team to return a contract to them.

Woolworth had said Tuesday if the teachers turned down the contract, a walkout would occur Friday morning.

Teachers four months ago had voted down a contract proposal, though that one had not been preceeded with a "recommend ratification" vote from the representative council.

Jurors still deliberating murder trial

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Nearly six hours of deliberation failed to produce a verdict yesterday in the murder trial of 16-year-old David Christian Barker.

Barker and Barry Braeseke, 20, are charged in the triple slaying of the Braeseke family in Dublin last year. Braeseke faces a separate trial later this month.

The only hint of the jury's leanings came shortly before it was dismissed.

Filing back into the courtroom just before 5 p.m., jurors asked Superior Court Judge Samuel P. Golde to clarify the difference between first and second degree murder.

Stoney faced and avoiding the audience's eyes, the seven men and five women returned to the jury room. Thirty minutes later, they were dismissed for the night.

Judge Golde spent nearly an hour yesterday morning meticulously instructing the jury on the criteria for their decision.

Last night he told them "all murder is second degree murder (the lesser offense) unless you find premeditation and deliberation."

Livermore maid entries

Entry blanks for the 1977 Maid of Livermore contest are still available at the Chamber of Commerce office, 1723 Barcelona St., Livermore. April 22 at 5 p.m. is the deadline to enter. The Maid of Livermore Pageant will be held at Castlewood Country Club on June 3. No-host cocktails at 6:30 p.m. will be followed by dinner at 8 o'clock. Reservations, $8 per person, may be made by telephoning the chamber office (447-1606).

Sirens testing Friday

If you hear sirens at noon tomorrow, don't panic — it's just Alameda County's quarterly testing of all their disaster warning devices.

The sirens are supposed to sound off at noon, emitting a one - minute blast, then a minute of silence, then a minute - long wavering signal.

According to the Office of Emergency Services, the tests are conducted to insure the operation of warning devices in the event of a major disaster even though the equipment is constantly maintained, inspected and tested daily except Sunday with a 20 - second blast.

During an actual emergency, the sirens would sound for three to five minutes. A steady blast would indicate a peacetime emergency while a wavering or short intermittent siren would warn of an immediate attack. If the sirens sound for three to five minutes at times other than the quarterly or noon tests, residents should listen to their local radio or TV stations for official information concerning the emergency.

Probe on in Dublin holdup

Sheriff's deputies report receiving no new leads in an armed robbery Monday afternoon at Ernie's Liquors, 7367 Village Parkway in Dublin, in which three persons took an undetermined amount of cash.

Two men, one concealing a shotgun in his green jacket, entered the store about 4 p.m. Monday and demanded cash. They fled to a waiting automobile and a woman accomplice drove the threesome away.

The gunman is described as a white man in his early 30s, about 5 feet 10, 175-180 pounds, with a wrap-around beard and a mustache. His companion is said to be about 6 feet, 165-170 pounds in his 20s. The woman driver is said to be in her early 20s.

Deputies said the robbers escaped in a 1964-66 maroon Buick Riviera.

Held captive by parents—Hovard

SAN FRANCISCO — John Hovard, Danville "Moonie" church member freed from his parents' custody by a Court of Appeals order, says he was locked in a motel room for days with no books, telephone or television because he refused to listen to "deprogrammers."

A Superior Court judge had granted his parents, John and Gail Hovard, 454 St. Regis Drive, Danville, custody of their 23 - year - old son for a 30 - day period away from the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

But Monday a Court of Appeal ruled the Hovards could not force their son to listen to professional deprogrammers hired to win him away from the church.

"I had all of my meals in my room and I was not allowed to go out of my room for exercise or for any other purpose," Hovard said in a statement filed Monday with the court. He said he was told he was under confinement as "punishment" for refusing to listen to the deprogrammers.

The court is considering whether to appoint a hearing examiner to determine whether Hovard's parents disobeyed the court orders.

A contempt of court citation originally was filed against parents of four other young church members who were removed from the church at the same time as Hovard. But three of them — Barbara Underwood, 25, Leslie Brown, 24, and Jacqueline Katz, 21 — have left the church and the fourth, Janice Kaplan, 24, said Monday she had no wish to prosecute contempt of court actions against her parents. There were indications she, too, might leave the church.

Monday the Court of Appeals ordered a halt to the temporary conservatorships granted to the Hovards and to Beatrice Kaplan, Toledo, Ohio, the mother of Janice Kaplan. The court said it will decide later whether the conservatorships are constitutional.

After the hearing Hovard told reporters he was "constantly being forced by my parents to listen to deprogrammers, but I always refused."

"I was confronted with accusations against the church," he said. "I didn't want to listen to the accusations. I didn't want to have to defend the church in that environment."

Nauseous over the space race

DUBLIN — A woman's touch has been added to the space race since Dublin resident Carol Pruit and nine other Bay Area ladies have been accepted by NASA - Ames Research Center to undergo another session of simulated spaceflight experiments.

Ater prior testing lasting two weeks, the 10 were chosen from 220 other volunteer applicants in the 35 to 45 age bracket. The upcoming battery of tests will last 24 days, according to Pruit. She said they would be similar to the first tests but more intensive.

The women learned about the testing a year ago from a newspaper ad placed by NASA - Ames Research Center which is located at Moffett Field in Mountain View.

"The whole idea really intrigued me," Pruit said. "I'm a curious person. Besides, I've always wanted to see some of the interesting facilities at Moffett Field."

Carol Pruit

Pruit is a Licensed Vocational Nurse. The other women consist of a banker, two writers, another nurse, an astrologer/actress, two electronics technicians, a psychological counselor and a drapery manufacturer. None of them are likely to go into space. But the results of their tests may help other women who will.

The purpose of the tests is to see how well females in this age group can tolerate reentry acceleration in a space shuttle after experiencing long periods of weightlessness.

All of the experiments can be aborted by the volunteer being tested if she feels faint or ill.

To simulate weightlessness, the subjects will be confined to bed all of the time for eight days. They can prop up on one elbow to eat. The rest of the time they have to remain prone.

Death warrant for a fair tradition

County Fair Association director Richard McCarthy told fellow directors Tuesday night that no civic group had stepped forward to take over the organizational and financial reins of the four-decades old parade. The Fair Association Board of Directors' entertainment committee had voted two weeks ago to withdraw financial support unless a civic group evidenced interest in the parade.

Last year, the Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee took over the organizational role and the Fair Association, as has been their practice in previous years, committed $2,500 to cover the cost of parade judging and awards.

McCarthy and fellow directors expressed regrets that a community group hadn't expressed interest in the event that has been held in Pleasanton since the 1930s.

McCarthy reported the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce said it did not have the manpower to commit and the Jaycees were presently going through a leadership change.

He also reported, as part of the entertainment committee report, that Jose Feliciano will play the Fairgrounds Amphitheatre on June 29-30. Other attractions include Freddie Fender, John Biner and, in other areas, Johnny Rivers' diving mules and the Mitchell Marionettes.

Directors suggested that only one-half of the race track be watered each day, in line with the need for water conservation. Maintenace chief Lew Alexander said at least 24,000 gallons a day are presently used. In the future, the half closest to the railing will be watered.

Directors learned that renters of 80 stalls at the Fairgrounds had not corrected potential fire hazard deficiencies, after a check of stalls Tuesday.

Secretary - Manager Lee Hall said a hearing at the Albany City Hall Friday would take up the question of a four-week harness race season at Golden Gate Fields. Hall reported a suit has been filed against the California Horse Race Board by county fair associations in San Mateo, Sonoma and San Joaquin, and Bay Meadows Race Track. The Alameda County Fair Association board has gone on record as opposing the transferral of the harness season from Golden Bear to Golden Gate Fields. They, and Solano, declined to join the plaintiffs, however.

Directors also voted to uphold past policy of not permitting any rock concert events on the grounds. Director Bill Jamieson was asked to represent the board in talks with the City of Pleasanton concerning operations at Tennis Faire.

Livermore's office director defends DMV

LIVERMORE — A report calling the Department of Motor Vehicles' system for issuing drivers licenses and vehicle registration antiquated and replete with errors is also in error, according to local DMV Director Elizabeth Thayer.

The report by a consultant to the California Little Hoover Commission included 60 recommendations for changes.

"The auditor general initiated a study of DMV budgetary costs and staffing," said Thayer, who noted "their finding showed differences in actual costs and those reported by the DMV."

"They said the DMV was spending more than it reported and was overstaffed," said Thayer, "but there are errors in that report."

"They quoted a cost per license issued based on us picking up approximately 10 million licenses statewide," she said. "The actual number is around 13 million and that's a difference of several million."

"The cost factor had to be incorrect."

DMV State Director Herman Sillas was quoted by the Associated Press as being in agreement with the report which says his department is wasting manpower and money.

Thayer said Sillas "took the report, went through it and found flaws and errors."

"The department is preparing a rebuttal to the auditor general," she added. "Yes, there are changes needed and we have already undergone some changes, including revisions in time factors for various transactions."

The report is slated for submission for approval at the commission's April 20 meeting.

Thayer said Legislative Analyst Alan Post, in a related cost matter, is pushing for elimination of the public "Back Seat Drivers' Public Panel."

"I've been on the phone all morning," she told The Times yesterday, anticipating today's senate budget committee hearing in Sacramento.

The $151,528 annual program includes residents of areas where the DMV has offices, meeting monthly to discuss related motor vehicle and law items, allowing the DMV public input.

Card of thanks

In Memoriam: In loving memory of my husband, Clinton, who passed away not long ago — March 27, 1976.

Deep in my heart lies a picture more precious than gold. It's a picture of you "Dear Bill." Your memory will never grow old. I think of you in silence with a grief that's deep and true. There's always that sad longing, could I only speak to you. You bade no one a last farewell, or even said goodbye, you were gone before I knew and only God knows why. More and more each day I miss you, though my thoughts are not revealed. Little they know the sorrow that's within my heart concealed. But some sweet day, we'll meet again and clasp each others hand once more in Heaven, that happy life. And so, since you've gone away, I have tried hard to carry on. I know you'd want me to. Now rest in peace and from my heart I say, "May God's love shine over you and bless you on every day."

Carol Pruit ponders her woozy experience with a centrifuge while undergoing testing related to the space shuttle program.

Dublin woman's part in space exploration

A side purpose of this study is to investigate the effect of bed rest (weightlessness) on the way a body eliminates medicines. Dr. Harold Sandler, principal investigator of this research program, stated such information may be of use in helping doctors decide the best way to use drugs in space flight and in patients confined to bed.

Eight days before and eight days after the bed rest stage, the volunteer's fluids, organs, metabolism, bones, muscles, blood chemistry will be tested in various ways to determine after effects of weightlessness. Their ability to think and function normally will also be gauged.

Pruit said astronauts had been undergoing the same kinds of examinations.

"Also, monkeys and mice," she said. "We've often wondered what we would do if the monkeys came out better than we did; especially in the computerized memory bank test that involves analogies."

There are six basic experiments used to test the women. They involve a flight simulator, centrifuge, exercycle, lower body negative pressure (LBNP), lean body mass, and short - term memory search task.

"During that first set of tests I was just terrible in the flight simulator to begin with," Pruit said. "But at the end of that segment, I was elected the most improved."

Their instructor's name was Charlie Deauchea.

"So everybody called us 'Charlie's Angels,'" she said.

Pruit said whirling around in the centrifuge was "neat" until they increased the G force to 3.

"That was unpleasant. And I kept getting cramps in my left leg during the exercycle test. The cycle was attached to the bed during that the bed rest portion and they kept increasing the tension on the pedals. I finally passed that test though."

The lean body mass examination was done under water.

"We had to be able to hold our breath underwater for 15 seconds. That was a snap for me since I love to swim."

She vowed the short-term memory test that utilized a cathode ray tube resembling a TV screen was fun.

"A series of letters would be flashed, then two. We were supposed to recall if the last two had been included in the first set."

The LBNP experiment involved putting the volunteer under pressure in a vacuum atmosphere.

"That felt strange; like my lower body was trying to leave the upper part. But I felt great afterward," Pruit said.

She said she would love to actually go into space and the whole testing experience was "great."

Valley obituary

Dorothy Schiavi

Dorothy C. Schiavi, a resident of Livermore for the last 12 years, died in a San Francisco hospital Tuesday. She was 73.

A native of Wheeling, W. Va., she is survived by her husband, Francis A. Schiavi of Livermore, a son, Mike Stimac of Las Vegas, Nev., daughter Rose Duncan of Livermore, three grandchildren, Jon Duncan of Newark, Diana Cooper and Jackie Davis, both of Santa Cruz, and a great - grandson, Jimmie Davis of Santa Cruz.

The rosary will be recited today at 7 p.m. in the chapel of Callaghan Mortuary, 3833 East Ave. in Livermore. Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a.m., also in the mortuary chapel.

Burial will follow at St. Michael's Cemetery in Livermore.

'I was called a robot'

In the statement, Hovard said all his books were taken away from him in violation of a court order that he be allowed free access to reading material. He added sometimes he was not allowed to telephone his attorney as ordered by the court.

"I was verbally abused," he told reporters. "I was called a robot, mindless, told I was faithless, I was immature, constantly, that kind of thing."

His parents, who maintained they did not try to deprogram their son, could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Hovard says he plans to return to the church, although he admits he did have some doubts.

"Given the situation I was in, with so many people so determined to rip me from the church and tear down my beliefs — I've had to ask questions.

"I never have felt the environment I was in was neutral or open enough for me to ask questions. I didn't feel at ease enough to ask for or receive an objective opinion.

Hovard, who spent Monday night with his parents, says he will move into one of the "Moonie" houses in the East Bay. He said he intends to keep close contact with his mother and father.

"But I want to make it clear that I'm still committed to the church; my life is very much a part of the church."

Hovard said he thought Monday's Court of Appeals decision was fair. "I can't deny my parents' love for me, but this is the law, and you can't get sentimental about it. We must deal on legal terms and with legal arguments. The rights of individuals have been imposed upon," he said.

He says that before joining the Unification Church nearly two years ago he was "basically an unemployed construction worker, hanging around in San Francisco."

He said his conversion to the church took one week. He admits that was an abrupt change, but he denies he's ever been away from the church since then."

"I was in jail for about five weeks for a crime I committed — that was early in my time with the church. I didn't give up my faith in that time," he said.

"Since I joined the church, my basic personality hasn't really changed, but my religious beliefs, my morals and belief in God have changed."

EBMUD water cuts

OAKLAND — More than 20 persons presented comments on the East Bay Municipal Utility District's water rationing plan Tuesday night.

Speakers at a public hearing discussed the existing rationing plan, and a revised one which would limit further the amount of water the district's 1.1 million customers could use each day.

During a regular board meeting earlier Tuesday, EBMUD general manager John Harnett outlined a plan to reduce water usage by 30 per cent. The plan would provide single - family households with 240 gallons a day starting May 1, and 195 gallons a day beginning Oct. 1.

The current plan, which seeks an overall 25 per cent reduction in water use, provides 280 gallons a day for customers.

Murray District's game plan for the next school chief

The applications, some 70 strong, have come in from little valley towns, metropolitan areas in the southern part of the state and burgeoning coastal communities.

All seek more information and ask consideration for the position of superintendent of the Murray School District.

From this large stack, to be screened by a three-person committee starting the last week of this month, will come a successor to Dr. Donald Williams, who took medical leave from the district in early January.

Dr. Donald Leu, the consultant hired by the district to head the selection process, says that upwards of 100 persons will have turned in applications by the deadline date of April 22.

Then, the professional screening committee will begin the arduous task of checking the resumes and measuring them against criteria worked up by Leu and the Local Advisory Committee, chaired by Lizann Kendall, chairwoman.

The screening committee, appointed Monday night by the Murray district board, is composed of Dr. Ralph Keller, director of career planning and placement at Stanford University; Dr. Robert Infelise, superintendent of schools of Gilroy Unified, and Dr. Vi Owens, a consultant and formerly associate superintendent for curriculum and personnel with Santa Clara County Schools.

The selection criteria was drafted after polling the committee.

Ms. Kendall notes that the revised criteria will be utilized in screening as well as selecting the most qualified candidate

Each candidate's personal atributes are of primary importance, followed by the candidate's professional skills and professional experience.

Under personal attributes, the following qualities are prioritized:

— The ability to resolve conflict, to communicate openly, and to be available to citizens, parents, staff and students.

— The ability to organize and inspire others; to meaningfully involve affected personnel in the decision - making process.

— The ability to listen, understand, accept, and work cooperatively with community groups and to convey information about their special needs to the total school - community.

— A professionally growing and "self - renewing" individual with excellent physical and mental health, vigor, and stamina.

— Demonstrated ability to express himself effectively in public, in conference, and in written materials.

Under professional skills, the following qualities are being sought:

— Curriculum development and evaluation, K-8.

— Personnel selection, evaluation, and development.

— Working with and involvement of citizens in educational improvement.

— Finance and business management.

— Objective and knowledgeable about collective bargaining.

Under professional experience, the screening committee and, later, the board will be looking at candidates with the following qualities:

— Elementary and/or intermediate school administrative experience.

— Elementary and/or intermediate school teaching experience.

— Central office executive experience.

— An earned administrative credential in education.

— A doctorate and/or recent advanced graduate work in educational administration.

Additional criterion of major importance, according to Ms. Kendall, is the candidate's abilities as a long-range planner.

Before the process is through— tentatively early June— the LAC, the board and the community will have had an opportunity to provide input, give opinions and question the finalists for the position.

It is a complex and time - consuming process.

About all Leu and the LAC can say at this point is that somewhere in this state, possibly in an elementary school district, is the next superintendent of schools for the Murray District.

To benefit youth ranch

Grant money translated into artful stationery

KATIE CLAESON

MARSHA GILLETTE

JUDY JOHNSON

In the quiet hours while a child slept, or while offspring were at school, three Livermore housewives labored over delicate ink sketches for love of the task and love of a cause.

In an especially original and appropriate way, Katie Claeson, Marsha Gillette and Judy Johnson of the Livermore Jaycee Wives have used monies from Project Mainstream to further the growing cause of Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch in Livermore. The "seed" grant from the national Jaycee organization will enable the ranch to refurbish Building 9 and start a Crisis Outreach Program for troubled youth of the valley.

Working from photographs, the women sketched three buildings at the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch — two of which have been since torn down because they were declared unsafe. The sketches have been translated into attractive stationery now on sale to the public.

The structures date from the years when the ranch was a tuberculosis asylum, first for veterans and then for children. The turn - of - the - century administration building of the Del Valle Sanitorium is partially torn down now, while Brigg's Dormitory of the 1923 Preventorium for Children has been dismantled about a month. A nurses' home, sketched along with these two, still stands.

Packages of eight assorted note cards with envelopes may now be purchased for $2 apiece. Outlets include Schlageter's Stationery, Gallery Records, The Way Up Gallery and Valley Realty of Livermore. Fully $1.34 of each sale will directly benefit Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch. The remainder pays printing and packaging costs.

The stationery will also be available at the popular Art - in - the - Vineyard fair May 29 at the Concannon Vineyard.

The three women who donated their artistic talents to the project have virtually no art training, but share a love of drawing and a lack of time to pursue their interest. All have pre-school or school-age children who take up most of their time. Marsha marvels that her sketch is not marred by "a trail of ink blots" deposited by her active two-year-old.

Both Katie and Judy acknowledge the value of a class they took in basic drawing conducted by Ruth Burden. Judy would eventually like to pursue a career in commercial art or architectural design. Marsha has already rendered several Livermore historical sites in pen and ink.

The Project Mainstream grant is administered by the Livermore Jaycee Wives Club. Other fundraisers which will be financed by the grant include an aluminum can drive by the Livermore Jaycees, a June 18 dance for senior citizens at Springtown Hall, a food concession at the Art - in - the - Vineyard show, and the sponsorship of four dancers from the Pleasanton Jaycees at a marathon planned by the Pleasanton VIP's April 22.

In the meantime, the Livermore Jaycees and North Livermore Jaycees will conduct a work session April 16 and 17 at the site of Building 9 on the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch on Arroyo Road. The major portion of the work to be done by volunteers consists of the clearing away of broken plaster before plumbing and electrical systems are instalied. Persons interested in helping with the manual labor, or sponsoring a fundraiser with grant money may contact Katie Claeson at 455-4018.

Work for a doctor?

Lou Ward, recently elected president of the Twin Valley Medical Assistants Assoc., invites prospective members to the Tuesday, April 19 installation dinner at Hap's Restaurant in Pleasanton. Lou has been affiliated with the organization for four years, which currently numbers 14 members. The club, which is open to women who work in doctors offices, gives medical assistants the opportunity to "share experiences and help each other do our jobs better," says Lou. The club meets monthly and features everything from lectures by medical professionals to field trips to hospitals. Lou, who has worked for Dr. George Collins of Pleasanton for five years, adds that social events and donations to worthy causes are also important to the club. For dinner reservations call Lou at 846-2252 by April 15.

Beauty and brains hunt

Young ladies between 14 and 18 years of age are invited to enter the California United Teenager Pageant, to be held at the Sheraton Airport Hotel in Los Angeles Sept. 16 through 18.

The pageant is the official preliminary to the Miss United Teenager Pageant, to be held in Washington, D.C. next December.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic and civic achievements, along with beauty, poise and personality. There is no swimsuit or talent competition. Contestants must be between 14 and 18 as of December 31, 1977 and must have at least a B average in school.

Each contestant accepted will be requested to participate in the Volunteer Community Service Program of the United Teenager Pageant, which requires them to share and participate in school and civic affairs. Each contestant must also write and present on stage an essay entitled, "My Country."

Among tne prizes are $15,000 in cash scholarships, a wardrobe, car and a trip to South America.

For more details write to Vernette R. Wendorf, State Director, 2678 Forest Drive, Conyers, Georgia 30207 or call (404) 483-6937.

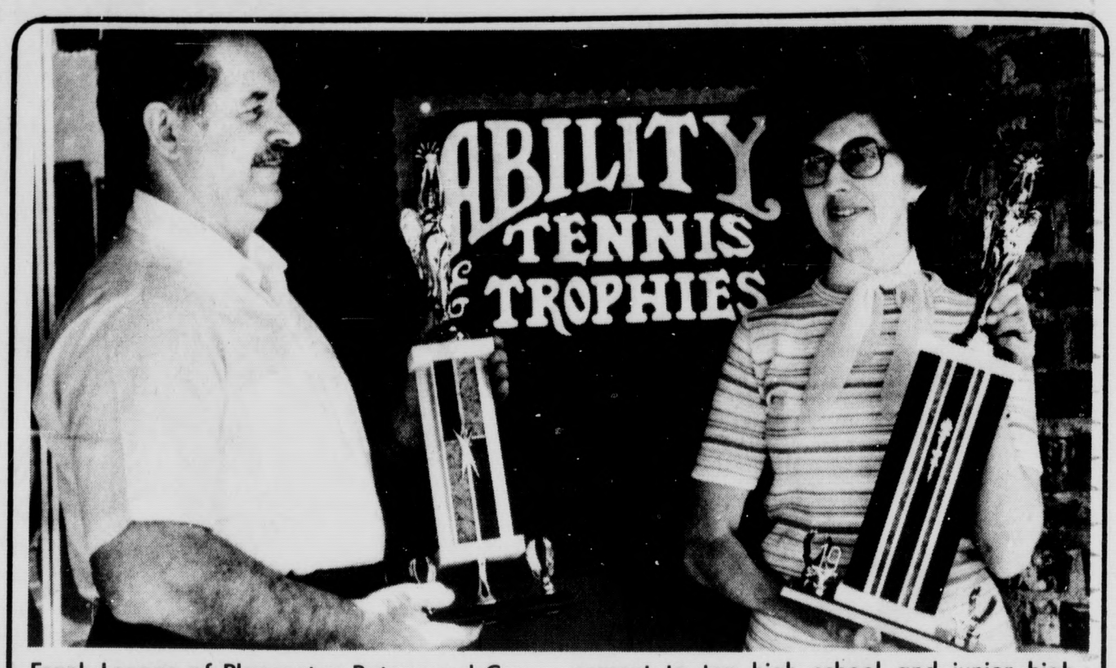
At work in the galley at Cactus Jack's restaurant is Chef Bill Ealy, busily preparing steaks. The restaurant is well-known for steaks, hamburgers, diet plates, and other dishes. But Bill reminds us that another favorite with the regular customers is the roast beef sandwich, featuring a generous portion of thinly sliced beef served on a french roll with fries. It also comes as a combo with salad. Cactus Jack's is located at 3571 First St. in Livermore, and is open 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily, serving breakfast, lunch and dinner.



Frank Lozano of Pleasanton Rotary and Corinne Mavridis of Pleasanton Soroptimists hold trophies from Ability Trophies that clubs will present to top high school and junior high groups in Second Pleasanton Invitational Jazz Festival Saturday.

Jazz festival here Saturday

PLEASANTON — The Second Pleasanton Invitational Jazz Festival, featuring 34 high school and junior high bands from throughout the Bay Area, will be in competition at Amador Valley High School all-day Saturday.

The Pleasanton Recreation Department and the Amador Valley High School band students are co-sponsoring the event, which commences at 8 a.m. and concludes at 6:30 p.m. with an awards program in the Amador Valley High auditorium.

Local high school, intermediate and junior high bands such as Granada, Livermore, Foothill, San Ramon, Pleasanton and Junction Avenue will be competing with bands from Berkeley, Hayward, Oakland and Petaluma — to mention just a few.

Trophies have been donated by the Pleasanton Rotary Club and Pleasanton Soroptimists, as well as the Pleasanton Recreation Department.

The Rotary and Soroptimist trophies will go those high school and junior high groups judged first in their respective groups. Awards will also be made to the top intermediate jazz group, runnerup awards (second, third and fourth places) in the high school division, second place in the intermediate division, first in the jazz ensemble II group, and soloist categories (25 awards), plus certificates to all bands participating.

Presentations at 6:30 p.m. Saturday will be made by Ralph Laird, principal at Amador Valley High, and Jerry Wilfley, chairman of the parks and recreation commission.

Groups in Event I will each perform for a half-hour. Following school bands: Santa Teresa, Marina, Terra Nova, Westmoor, Sunset, Foothill and San Leandro.

There will be a lunch break from 12 to 1 with Jefferson of Daly City beginning the afternoon segment at 1 p.m. They will be followed by San Ramon, Petaluma, Hayward, Enterprise, Capuchino, Oakland, Pacific, Berkeley, and Granada.

The Pleasanton School band will open Event II at 8 a.m. followed at half-hour intervals by Loma Vista, Orinda, John Muir, Calaroga, W.E. Mitchell, Bancroft and John Muir I.

After the lunch break, Sunset II will lead off the afternoon segment at 1 p.m. followed by Granada II, San Leandro II, Martinez, Strobridge, and Altamira. Junction Avenue of Livermore will lperform at 4:15 p.m.

Adjudicators for Event I are Terry Summa, Ray Brown, and Barry Ehrlich. For Event II it'll be Lyle Cruz, Eugene Graves and Dan Goulart.

Dawn Perry (right), one of the fair young ladies vying for the title "Maid of Pleasanton," accepts a $25 check from Nancy Delany of Mark Gerton Realtors. This realty company is one of the merchants of Pleasanton supporting the pageant this year in a donation toward a scholarship for the winner of the contest. Other merchants are also invited to give their support by donating $10 to be on a patrons list; $15 for a quarter-page ad and $25 for a half-page ad in a special souvenir pageant program being published this year. The ten finalists are now under the direction of Barbara Purrington in preparing for the event scheduled for Sunday, May 26 at Castlewood Country Club beginning with an informal reception for the contestants at noon, lunch at 1 p.m. and pageant at 2 p.m. Tickets at $6.50 per person which includes an avocado - chicken salad with garishes, beverage and dessert luncheon and pageant are available from each contestant or at the Chamber of Commerce office, 10 Neal St.

Kenny Tohill exercises Deliverance

Behind the scenes at Cow Palace

Already, 21 local riders had done well in the Western riding division of the Junior Grand National, including Livermore's Donna Pashote and Tammy Casipit, who took home blue ribbons.

Now it was time for the exacting English hunter and jumper competition. Besides Amy, who attends Mendenhall Intermediate School in Livermore, entrants included Andrea Fleck, 14, an Amador High freshman (both girls are trained by Shelley Durbin at Canterpoint riding school, Livermore); Jeanine Commins, 12, who attends Fifth Street School in Livermore, and Kenny Tohill, 14, an eighth grader at Pleasanton Elementary (both take lessons from Val Tohill, Ken's mother, and Jeanine also rode a horse trained in Woodside.)

Mostly, the riders and their families and trainers stayed in San Francsico all three days of the competition, sleeping at motels or in friends' homes and stabling their horses at the Cow Palace for a $30 fee. (The contest ended yesterday, complete results to be announced next week.)

It was an expensive jaunt, estimated by one mother at $125 in entry, stall and trainer fees alone.

But that was a pittance compared with the $350 custom - made boots some of the girls were wearing, the $500 saddles, the $140 velvet - collared riding jackets, the glossy horses worth thousands of dollars each.

Then there were girls like Amy, a petite blonde with a love of horses who pulled on her plastic boots and second-hand hunt coat and won a ribbon on a horse borrowed from her riding teacher.

Entering the Junior Grand National is a young rider's dream, but it isn't all glamor.

The show starts at 7:30 each morning so riders must get up at the crack of dawn. Their chores include cleaning out their horse's stall, brushing the horse, braiding its mane and tail, cleaning its hooves with a pick.

Only when the animal is saddled and bridled does the rider stretch a hairnet over her hair and settle on the velvet - covered protective helmet.

The hat guards against head injury, but riders take plenty of risks maneuvering their big, spirited horses in the arena. Often, a horse may "refuse" — come to a sudden halt in front of a jump, sometimes sending its rider crashing into the oak poles but miraculously seldom causing worse than bruises.

Any balking on the horse's part is grounds for immediate dismissal from the arena. "Thank you," says the announcer in clipped tones, and the rider knows it's all over ... at least until next time.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My 3 - year - old daughter started talking to herself as if she were addressing a friend. Sometimes, her unseen friend is an animal, sometimes it's her brother who's in school, and sometimes it's someone none of us have ever heard of. My husband and I are trying to get her to at least be honest with us about these imaginary friends, but she lies. She won't give them up. Since my sister and my mother both ended up in a mental institution, I don't find this amusing or charming. I want her to be honest and, please God, sane. — O.V.

DEAR O.V.: Your daughter is probably lonely, especially if her brother is now in school. She may also be jealous and trying to prove that she, too, has a life of her own. I certainly wouldn't be worried about her sanity, if I were you, for many youngsters compensate for loneliness and boredom through imaginary friends. Neither would I discourage this, as it can be of value to her.

Children often learn by creating imaginary friends and situations. They try out certain roles and this can help to prepare them for real experiences. Because they have practiced, they are better able to cope.

Psychologists at the University of Texas discovered that the child who has an imaginary companion may be more able to engross himself in play activities. He may be more of a self - starter, an imitiator.

Try to view your daughter's imaginative play as a talent, rather than an attempt at deception. You're fortunate to have a creative child. Her creativity should be encouraged, rather than stifled.

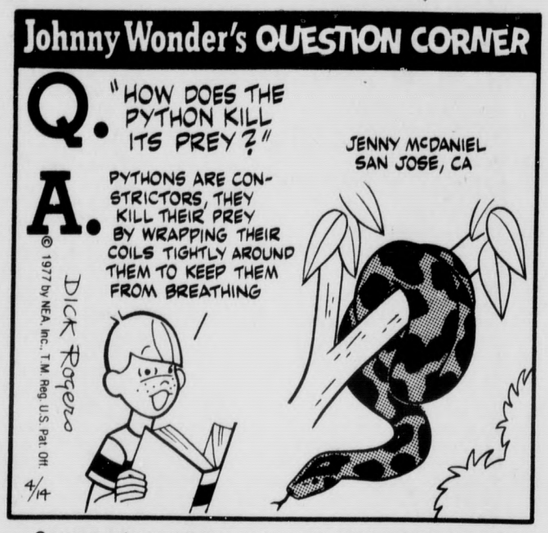
DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I made 20 New Year's resolutions and I've broken almost all of them. I've no more confidence in my self - discipline. Some of the resolutions were important and I see the whole year going down the drain. How can I restore my faith in myself and rescue a situation that seems lost? — J.R.

DEAR J.R.: Begin again. You don't really have to wait until January 1, 1978. If it makes you feel better and more organized, start fresh on a Monday. Treat it like your own personal New Year. You might even have a little celebration to welcome the beginning of a new regime.

It's never too late to improve habits, so don't give up hope. Before you make up a new set of resolutions, however, take a good look at the old and don't repeat errors. For instance, make sure the list isn't too long. In other words, don't set impossible tasks for yourself. Don't try to give up smoking, drinking, and go on a diet all in the same month. This is too strenuous and your chances for success are far better if you take on one habit at a time. You can conquer them all, but not all at once.

Take one specific resolution and focus on that for the next month. Then, you may have that under enough control to add one or two more new resolutions for the following month. Make certain that you're strongly motivated for the goals you've set for yoruself. Then, let others know about your goals and don't be afraid to enlist their help.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "HOW DOES THE PYTHON KILL ITS PREY?"

A. PYTHONS ARE CONSTRICTORS, THEY KILL THEIR PREY BY WRAPPING THEIR COILS TIGHTLY AROUND THEM TO KEEP THEM FROM BREATHING

Some snakes coil around other animals and squeeze them to death. Then they swallow them.

The python is such a snake. Parts of such lands as Africa and Asia are the homes of the python.

This huge serpent is among the biggest snakes living today. A python may grow 30 feet long (measure that out on your sidewalk and it'll give you an idea of how long the python is).

The python has no poison fangs. It kills rats and other animals by seizing the prey with its strong, sharp teeth and wrapping its coils around the victim, then squeezing it.

It does not squeeze hard enough to crush the victim's bones. It squeezes just enough to stop the victim's breathing. The python then swallows its prey whole.

Its hinged jaws spread far apart to swallow animals as big as a pig. Its skin stretches and the food makes a big lump in its long body. It may take a python several weeks to digest a meal.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 17-year-old male, 5 feet 7 and weigh 137 pounds. My problem is that I am constantly tired. During summer I sleep an average of 10 to 11 hours per day, but during the school year I sleep only six to seven.

I work two nights a week until midnight or later. I stay away from all junk food and eat only fresh fruits, vegetables and lean meats.

My heart rate is 98 to 108 a minute and I have started jogging to lower it. My hemoglobin is above average. Please tell me what is wrong and how I can feel less tired.

DEAR READER — Fatigue is a symptom of many things. It can be a sign of overwork, lack of sleep, psychological problems, or illnesses such as anemia, low thyroid function, poor nutrition, tuberculosis, cancer or any number of diseases.

Since you are not complaining of losing weight, have no other complaints and don't have anemia I doubt you have a serious illness. Nevertheless, the first requirement to solving the cause of fatigue is a careful medical examination. You could have diabetes and there is no way you would know this without tests of your blood sugar.

The second step, if you pass your medical examination with no abnormal findings, is to look to your lifestyle. If you smoke, stop. A fitness program is a good idea. Perhaps a full eight hours of sleep a night is useful and necessary for you to feel your best.

Look at your social life and goals. Everyone needs something to look forward to. It is amazing how much energy a person will have if he suddenly finds out he is going on a trip he wanted to make or to do something else that really interests him.

Psychological factors are closely related to your sense of energy and well being. Goals are part of this. Lack of interest in social aspects of life, lack of interest in others and non-involvement are commonly symptoms of psychological problems — all of which can make you fatigued and withdrawn from normal activities.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-6, Fatigue, to give you a better understanding about its causes and how to handle it. Others who want more information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

For Thursday, April 14, 1977

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In financial matters today, think in terms of dollars and cents. It's fine to consider aesthetic values, but you can't bank on them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unfortunately, you can't confide in all of your friends today. Be close-mouthed with one you know to be a bit of a gossip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're into something that requires a joint effort today, be sure you're teamed up with doers. A slacker could really hamstring the project.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're clever and imaginative today, but just a shade too timid to put your thoughts to the test. Try it. It could work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) To be on the safe side today, assign your work to reliable parties. If there's anyone you're not sure of, it's best to bypass them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Solutions may come so easily to you today that you'll doubt their efficiency. This could cause you to reject a good thing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're clever and resourceful in gaining things today. Be careful your methods are such that you won't be ashamed to air them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Of course you're entitled to relax and enjoy yourself today, but try to do it as inexpensively as possible. Don't break the bank.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Take care of important matters early, when you're at your brightest. Toward evening you'll run out of inspiration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You feel gregarious today and will love to rap socially with friends. In doing so, don't pass choice gossip about a pal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) First make sure the home fires are burning brightly today before you lavish any surplus time, funds or affection on friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to let things you enjoy take you away from your duties today. You'll profit little if you don't do that which demands top priority.

West's double of five diamonds was most unfortunate. If he had just passed East would almost surely have gone to six clubs. That contract would go one down against a heart lead and would make against the lead of any other suit.

East might well have taken the double out, but he decided to trust his partner.

South decided that the doubler would have at least three diamonds and probably all four. He also counted an easy 11 tricks against a 3-1 trump break and a way to handle four trumps in the West hand provided West had to follow to two hearts. All that would be required would be a series of unblocking plays.

South started the series by ruffing that club lead with his jack of diamonds. Then he played the ace and noted that East discarded a club. Next came a lead of trump to dummy. West played low and the trick went to dummy's seven. Dummy's last club was ruffed with the queen of trumps and South cashed two hearts.

Then he led his last small diamond toward dummy, finessed the nine after West played small and drew West's last trump with the king while discarding his last high heart to collect three heart tricks and concede two spades at the end.

Scooter has a special father

on Sports

Kerplunk! Airborne from 30 feet, the ball hit the basket, filtered through the net and dropped to the ground. The Warriors were rolling now.

The crowd roared, the shooter, Rick Barry, retreated down court on defense and Golden State jumped out to a 20 point margin.

One fan yelled: "Hey, way to go Rick, baby. You're hot tonight."

A minute later, the stage was set again. The ball went to Barry, the aging 33 year - old veteran. He launched another shot of equal distance. This time it hit the front of the rim, and dribbled around before falling in. Fans applauded with approval, the Warriors' bench clapped in triumph, the PA announcer bellowed "Rick Barry" over the thunderous roar and sitting alone, undaunted by the pandemonium, sat the Golden State ballboy munching on a hot dog.

Scooter Barry

He had viewed the scene before. Nothing was unique about the situation. After all, why should your father's prolific talents interfere with the great taste of a ball park frank?

Young Scooter Barry is proud of his dad's efforts on the court. He, along with brother Jon, have been watching Rick's razzle - dazzle unparalleled lay for three years as a Warrior employe. But watching shot after shot, assist after assist and the same tenacious hustle game after game, the hand clap becomes as monotonous as, well...eating another hot dog.

So Scooter didn't pound his palms while the sellout crowd banged theirs.

The Warriors were winning and finally won by a big count — bettering the New York Nets by almost 40 — and little else mattered to the young Warrior fan, except biting the two hot dogs in hand to nothing.

Scooter joins his brother mopping the free throw area during timeouts, holding a ready cup of Gatorade for thirst drenched players, throwing towels to perspiring faces, and, of course, performing a ballboy's biggest role by keeping an eye on the — what else? — heavy supply of balls during Warrior home games.

"It's not really a job," explained Scooter, just one of five children who live in Round Hill with their celebrity father and mother, Pam. "We just help out the players so they don't have to get up."

Job or no job, the task is part of a rigorous schedule the youthful pair endure when the Warriors are home. A routine day might find Scooter and Jon rising at 7:30 a.m., an hour before school starts at St. Mary's in Walnut Creek. After the final bell, Scooter has track practice, Jon baseball. Both will try to grab a quick nap before heading out to the arena for a week night 7:30 p.m. encounter, but that isn't always the norm.

After Rick treats post game interviews and all the towels are picked up, the threesome jump in the car and retreat for home. Bedtime for Scooter, 11, and Jon, 7, is usually 10:30 or closer to 11 on game nights.

Decked out in blue and gold Warrior warm - ups, both Jon and Scooter like the idea of close identity with lots of fans cheering on their hometown heroes at the Coliseum.

"I know a lot of people in the Coliseum," said Scooter. "They're all pretty good friends of mine. Knowing the players is really a big thing too. I think my brother and I are just really lucky to know all these people."

They owe that to their father, but have kept Rick's success in proper perspective while fully understanding his approach on life.

"They'll tell you that their father is not as important as a lot of people like the policeman, the school teacher, the priest..." confided Barry. "There are a lot of people in life that do jobs that are a lot more important than their father's."

Scooter's dad might be a superstar on the court, but hardly one around the house.

"I really like him first as a father, then as a basketball player," explained Scooter, setting his priorities.

"I just think it's better that way, because I don't want to walk around and say 'hey, I'm Rick Barry's son.' When people come up to me and say, 'Wow, you must be lucky,' most of the time, if I do answer, I just say he's just like your father or anybody else's.

"He's very special, but we don't think of him being a special basketball player. We just think of him as a special father.

"He doesn't bring up basketball around the house," Scooter noted. "He always keeps the family on top."

But being the son of Rick Barry doesn't always bring a smile to Scooter's face. He's already feeling the pressure from classmates who expect the same flashy court performance as his dad. That's asking a lot of an 11 - year - old boy.

"But he's handling it very well," said Rick. "When he plays basketball, a lot of kids will gang up on him because they know he's my son. They say a lot of nasty things to him and he holds his composure very, very well. I'm really proud of him. He gets knocked down and gets right up and it doesn't affect him.

"I just tell him, 'Scooter, a lot of people are very nasty and a lot of people are jealous of other people, and you just can't let it bother you.' And it doesn't. I hope he can keep that as life goes on and he gets older. It's not an easy position to be in.

"It's especially difficult when he's playing basketball, because people will compare him to me as he gets older. I don't envy him in that respect.

"Actually, I would hope that he would learn to play another sport," he added. "I don't force anything on them. But if they want to play tennis or golf, that would be okay."

OAKLAND — It's standing room only in the vicinity of Mike Norris' locker lately, but the Oakland A's pitcher doesn't mind the overflow reporters from next-door neighbor Mitchell Page's daily news conference.

"Hey, the man might wind up puttin' $25,000 in my pocket," Norris laughed after another potent Page plate performance had lifted the A's to their third straight win over the California Angels, 9-3, before an alleged crowd of 3017 at the Coliseum yesterday.

Monday, Page ripped a triple and received a game winning walk and Tuesday, he went three-for-five with a pair of doubles and as many rbi. That earned him a raise from around the major league minimum salary of $19,000 all the way up to a solid base of $30,000.

"Mr. Finley told me I might be classified as a rookie, but he's not gonna treat me like one," Page revealed after topping all his previous heroics and upping his batting average to .500 with two homers, a double, six runs batted in and a stolen base. "I'm his regular left fielder and he's gonna pay me like it."

Finley's generosity may have been a stroke of genius. The ailing A's owner watched his sixth game in a row and saw Page blast a three - run homer in the third to put Oakland ahead to stay. The win put the once-beaten A's three games up on the Angels, a club with two of Oakland's famous free agents in the line-up.

Manager Jack McKeon believes Page has unlimited potential.

"It's a case of a guy getting an opportunity he thinks — and we think — he richly deserves," McKeon explained. "Now, he's paying off an obligation to himself and exhibiting his confidence."

"I figured once I got over here, all I had to do was play my game; I didn't have to beat anybody out, I just had to play ball," he said, adding that while he has had good springs in the past, "I never had nothin' like this. I usually hit better during the second half when I know the pitchers better."

After Terry Humphrey singled home Bruce Bochte with the Angels first run in the top of the third, Page began to show off what knowledge he already has.

With two out in the A's half of the inning, Sheldon Mallory — a last minute starter in place of Bill North in center field — picked up his first major league hit with a soft bounder up the middle of the diamond and Larry Lintz walked on four pitches.

Angel starter Wayne Simpson, who attended the same high school as Page, though several years earlier, got a pair of strikes past Mitchell, then — wham.

Page sent the first home run of his American League career sailing 365 feet over the right field fence. That would have been plenty, but the A's weren't through with Simpson, or the trio of California relievers who followed.

In the fifth, Mallory got another hit and Dick Allen, also batting near the .500 mark, brought him home with a sacrifice fly to center. An inning later, Wayne Gross walked and later scored on a sacrifice fly by fellow rookie infielder Rob Picciolo.

Page homered again, this one traveling about 390 feet to right center, to lead off the seventh and doubled home two more runs in the eighth before scoring himself on a single by Allen's first base caddy, Jerry Tabb.

About the only consolation for the Angels, other than Joe Rudi's trio of singles, was the fact that Oakland wasn't required to bat in the last of the ninth.

Another of the ex-Pirates who came over in the Phil Garner trade, Rick Langford, got the win for Oakland after scattering six hits and striking out three over the first five and two-thirds innings. Pablo Torrealba, who got an easy win Monday night, earned his save in this one with three-plus innings of hard work.

Torrealba, purchased in a straight cash deal with Atlanta, has not allowed an earned run in his brief fie inning Oakland relief career and is well on his way to becoming one of the A's more celebrated "nobodies."

"We talked about so damn many ballplayers," said McKeon, recalling the pre-season rebuilding of the decimated A's. "When Charlie mentioned him, I said to go ahead and buy him."

Just like any smart shopper.

Trevino returns to action

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Lee Trevino returns to action, but Jerry Pate is among the missing, this week in golf's elite, $225,000 Tournament of Champions.

Trevino, often a contender but never a winner in this event that he ranks among his great, unfulfilled goals, is making his second attempt on a comeback from major back surgery last year.

The flamboyant, flippant Trevino played three times in Florida, without notable success, earlier this season but was forced to return to his home in Santa Teresa, N.M. for further rest and recuperation. He's been out the last four weeks, missing both the Tournament Players Championship and last week's Masters.

"Gonna try it again," Trevino said Wednesday night, clapped an arm around veteran Doug Sanders, grinned and said, "just a couple of old hasbeens."

Pate, however, pulled out with continued hand, back and neck problems that, he said, will sideline him for at least 10 weeks, perhaps more.

Joining the current U.S. Open champ among the absentees are such frequent competitors as Hubert Green, Hale Irwin, Tom Weiskopf, Gary Player and Arnold Palmer. All failed to qualify under the unique format that brings together only the winners of regular tour events from the last 12 months.

They've been shoved aside, at least briefly, by the overwhelming youth movement that has swept the game this year and placed a record 12 firsttimers in the field of 32.

The leaders are Mark Hayes, who has picked up three tour titles in the last 12 months, and Bruce Lietzke and Gary Koch, each a two-time winner. All are making their first appearance in the event that offers $45,000 to the winner and $2,250 to the last place man.

Heading the field, of course, is Masters champ Tom Watson, and Jack Nicklaus, the man he beat in Augusta. Watson is the only three-time winner this season, heads the year's moneywinning list with $175,185 and is a prime candidate for Player of the Year honors. Nicklaus, who skipped this tournament last year, is a four-time T of C winner.

Other major contenders in the 72-hole chase that starts Thursday on the 6,855 yard, par 72 La Costa Country Club course are defending title-holder Don January, Ray Floyd, PGA king Dave Stockton, Al Geiberger, Ben Crenshaw and Australian David Graham.

ABC-TV will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Wujek sparks Nazarene cagers

PT. LOMA — Joey Wujek poured in 24 points to lead Livermore Nazarene Church to a sturring 79-64 victory over Camarillo last night in the opening round of the Pt. Loma Basketball Tournament here last night.

As a result of the victory Livermore's team will take on Oroville in a second-round game at 9 a.m. this morning.

Wujek, a 6-6 star from Granada High School, Tim Jenkins of Livermore High and Foothill High's Steve Sperber all got hot in the second half to spark the Matadors to the victory.

The score was tied at halftime. Jenkins added 16 points and Sperber 15 for the winners.

Lax GS is on the ropes

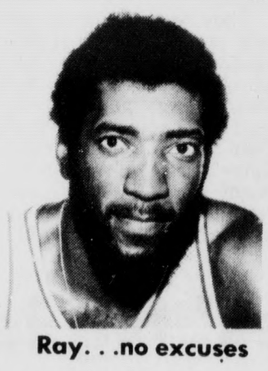
DETROIT — There are times when a basketball fan takes a welcome respite from the envy of his high-salaried heroes. For Golden State Warrior fans, Tuesday night was a night most of the Oakland Coliseum crowd of 12,459 were glad they didn't have to trudge into the locker room after the game.

The loss wiped out the home court advantage the Warriors had sweated for in the final days of the regular season. The best two-out-of-three series shifts to Cobo Arena here tonight at 5 p.m. (PST).

There's no telling what Warrior coach Al Attles said to — or screamed at — his team after Golden State failed to score during the last 6:49 of its NBA play-off opener with Detroit and fell, 95-90.

Attles isn't repeating it and chances are the players aren't anxious to have the word leak out. It couldn't have been pleasant.

"It seemed like after we got the lead, we figured we'd done enough," Attles said disgustedly. "When things started going the other way, some people said, 'Hey, we can't make it tonight.' I told the team I didn't think we wanted it enough."



Ray. . .no excuses

The Warriors squandered a 63-49 rebounding edge and what had been an 18-point second quarter lead with a dismal shooting percentage of 37.9. That statistic gradually got worse after the second period high-water mark.

In the second, Golden State had hit at a 50 per cent clip. In the third period, it was 31.8 and by the fourth it was a near-invisible 21.7. Still, it was the intangibles that ruffled Attles feathers.

Lanier. . .scared

"If the ball is loose on the floor, I've got an equal chance to get it. If I don't, I've got to say the other player wanted it more," Attles said. "We were just reaching, they dived after it."

Not to mention the way the Warriors seemed to forget their homework. For two days, the club studied Detroit's offense and ways to stop it. What happened?

"I was amazed to see Kevin Porter and (Eric) Money going down the middle on the same things we talked about in practice," Attles snapped sarcastically.

Captain Rick Barry's comments didn't infer a vote of confidence in his teammates.

"How do I know what happened?" he snapped after drying his hair for 20 minutes. "S---, the ball didn't go in the basket. Up by 18 on a team like that and lose it, s---, we didn't deserve to win."

McRae, Howard lead Glads over San Mateo, Foothill

HAYWARD — Mike McRae took three individual firsts and ran on the winning 400-meter relay team to give Chabot College's track team a thrilling 73-72 victory over visiting College of San Mateo here yesterday.

The Gladiators also beat Foothill, 97-39 in the other part of the tri - meet.

McRae took his favorite event, the triple jump, with a 47-4½ leap. He also won the long jump with a 23-11½ effort and the 100-meter dash in 10.6 with a strong finish. He also finished second in the 200-meter dash with a 22.1 clocking.

Former Livermore High School star Greg Howard was second in the javelin with a 180-10 throw and finished fifth in the shot put.

The Gladiators were also aided by a 6-9 first place school record leap in the high jump by Bob Peterson.

The Gladiators cinched the meet when Larry Jackson leaped 47-4 to finish second behind behind McRae in the triple jump.

That second place effort by Jackson was needed by Chabot as San Mateo had just swept the pole vault. Kevin Stevenson of CSM leaped 15-1½ to win the event and the Bulldogs closed within grasping distance of the Gladiators.

Chabot also got a good effort from Tom Dave Emery and Mark Molina in the 800-meters. Emery took the event in a balzing 1:54.6 and Molina followed with a 1:55.1. Tom Smith of Chabot won the mile in a fine 4:18.1 and finished fourth in the 5,000 meters.

Chabot, now 7-0 in Golden Gate Conference action, will meet defending conference and two - time state champion San Jose on the latters' track April 22.

The Gladiators will "warm up" for the San Jose meet by competing in the Woody Wilson Relays at Davis Saturday.

'Stang golfers win

Foothill High School's golf team won a sudden - death 275-277 decision over Amador Valley and Monte Vista trounced San Ramon 195-214 in East Bay Athletic League action Tuesday.

The Dons and Falcons completed a deadlock from Monday, which ended with the teams tied at 253-253 after the sixth scores were added in.

Stay unbeaten

Dons romp over MV

Amador Valley High School's swimming team remained undefeated in East Bay Athletic League action with a convicing 118-51 victory over visiting Monte Vista yesterday in Pleasanton.

Bill Burns, Edmond Carter and Danny Knauer sparked the Dons.

Knauer won the 500-yard freestyle in 5:06.9 and the 200-yard freestyle in 1:57.5. He also swam a strong leg on the winning 400-yard freestyle relay team along with Kevin Kurtz, Mark Allen and Tom Wilson. Their clocking was a fine 3:41.1.

Burns won the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:09.0 and swam on the 200-yard medley relay team which recorded a 1:50.7 win.

He also finished second in the 200-yard individual medley.

Carter captured the 100-yard butterfly in 59.5, swam a leg on the medley relay team and was third in the 50-yard freestyle.

Another Amador Valley star was Allen, who won the 50-yard freestyle in 23.6. Steve Pratuch won the 100-yard backstroke for the Dons with a 1:02.6 clocking and swam on the medley relay team.

Amador coach Chuck Volonte was pleased with the win.

"I felt our team did well," he said in somewhat of an understatement. "Of course, we're mainly concerned with getting our times down in time for the North Coast Section meet.

"We're also looking forward to our big meets with Livermore and San Ramon."

Count mows down Padres

SAN DIEGO — Righthander John Montefusco fired a three-hitter Wednesday night to carry the San Francisco Giants to a 3-1 victory over San Diego and end a three-game Padres winning streak.

Montefusco struck out eight and walked three while squaring his record at 1-1. Righthander Rick Sawyer, 0-1, absorbed the loss for San Diego.

Bill Madlock paced San Francisco's 10-hit attack with a single and a solo homer.

The Padres picked up their only run off Montefusco in the fifth inning on a double by Doug Rader and a single to center by Sawyer.

Montefusco, who lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 in his first start this season, improved his career record to 6-1 against the Padres.

Montefusco and Sawyer hooked up in a scoreless pitching duel for the first three innings,

In other National League games the Cubs beat the Phillies 3-1, St. Louis topped New York 7-3 and Pittsburgh shutout Montreal 3-0. The Houston - Cincinnati and Los Angeles-Atlanta games were played at night.

scored 31 points on a like number of field goal attempts and picked off four steals, continued, "All I know is I tried as hard as I could. Sure, I got tired at the end, but the guy (Attles) couldn't get me any rest."

Center Clifford Ray's reaction, and in fact that of the whole squad, was similar. Said Ray, neatly summing things up, "This kind of s---'s been goin' on all season. We can't make no more excuses."

All of which spelled relief for the embattled Pistons, a team with about as much espirit d'corps as the White House plumbers.

"We were kind of afraid of coming up here," admitted Piston center Bob Lanier, who scored 28 points and collected 17 rebounds. "They had the home court advantage and they're a seasoned team, while we've got a lot of young guys."

They way Lanier's sub and some time front line mate, Leon Douglas, was playing, it appeared that Detroit was going to try and overcome fear with fear itself. Douglas repetoire included an assortment of digs, elbows and shoves that ranged from rough to downright brutal.

Douglas explained, saying, "In the first half, we were having trouble adjusting to their two center offense (Golden State has taken to playing both Ray and Robert Parish in tandem).

"So in the second half, we realized we had to make contact with the guy to go to the ball," the 6-10 Alabama graduate said. "You block and move and it gives you momentum going to the ball."

Which, in turn, gave the Pistons the momentum going to game two and, perhaps, Los Angeles for the Western Conference semi-finals.

ketball locked in the closet when at home. Even one game into the NBA playoffs and battling to unthrottle potent Detroit, Barry would much rather think about his family than the pick and roll.

"It's my living and when I'm home, there are a lot more important things than basketball," said Barry, who plans to play one more season. "We don't discuss it much. I try to talk to them about what their interests are. I'd much rather talk about how Jon is doing in Little League and how Scooter is doing in track..."

Than how the Warriors plan to walk off with the NBA championship this season.

Scooter is all for that.

"They've really been playing great. If they play the same, I think they'll easily go all the way," enthused Scooter.

And the further the Warriors go, the more hot dogs Scooter gets to chomp on.

That's a deal he can't refuse.

Required immunization clinic operating today

PLEASANTON — Parents who will be registering their kindergartners for fall enrollment are reminded that immunizations required by the state before a child can be admitted to school are available today, and every Thursday, at the Alameda County Health Department clinic, 3730 Hopyard Rd., Room 102, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Cost for immunization is $1 per person.

State law requires that before a child may be admitted to school, immunization against the following diseases must have been received: Diptheria, pertussis, tetanus, polio and measles (the red, hard variety).

Kindergarten registration will take place in five schools in the Pleasanton Joint School District — Alisal, Fairlands and Valley View Schools on Tuesday, April 26 and Vintage Hills and Walnut Grove on Wednesday, April 27 — between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Staff, including school nurses, will be available to assist with registration and answer questions.

State law limits enrollment to children who will be 4 years and 9 months old on or before Sept. 1, 1977. Proof of age is required.

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

'Practice baking'

"Practice baking" is what Lynne Sangster of Pleasanton has been doing, as she now studies the premium book from the Alameda County Fair for possible entry classes for her homemade pies.

Fair premium books, entry forms offered

PLEASANTON — The premium book and entry forms for the 1977 Alameda County Fair are now available.

Persons interested in receiving a premium book or pamphlet covering a specific department, are requested to write or call the Fair office in Pleasanton. The address is P.O. Box 579, Pleasanton 94566 and the phone number is 846-2881.

Listing categories for cash awards exceeding $103,000, the premium book has something for everyone with interests ranging from arts and crafts to veterinary science.

This year's fair begins June 26 and runs through Sunday, July 10.

Murray registrations set for kindergarten

Kindergarten registration for the 1977-78 school year will begin Monday, April 18, in the Murray School District.

Parents are encouraged to enroll their child during the week of April 18-22 as this will help with the planning of next year's staff needs. A child is eligible for registration if he/she will be five years old on or before December 2, 1977.

Verification of a child's age, either through a birth certificate or other appropriate evidence, is required by State law and should be brought at the time of registration. In addition, the Child Health and Disability Prevention Program recommends that a complete medical be reported at the time of kindergarten entry. Appropriate information and forms will be available to parents to meet this legal requirement.

Mumps and Rubella (3-day measles) immunizations are recommended prior to attendance at the first day of kindergarten and the diptheria, whooping courgh, tetanus, polio, and measles (10-day rubeola) inoculations are required.

Parents may register at the school office between the hours of 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

D.A. raps county fair but won't file charges

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — A report from the district attorney's offices criticizes management of the Contra Costa County Fair but finds insufficient evidence for criminal charges, it was revealed Tuesday.

The report was sent to the attorney general's office, and District Attorney William O'Malley declines to make details public until the state office reviews the document.

It was learned, however, that the report is critical of the nine - member fair board appointed by the governor.

Assistant Attorney General James Sanderson rules out criminal charges but said the possibility of civil action is still being studied.

O'Malley explained he could not publicly release the report from his office, because the Attorney General's office had asked his staff to make the investigation for possible criminal charges.

"It might be improper to release any details now," said Sanderson, "I just got it, and haven't had a chance to review it with my supervisors.

"It's not like it's closed."

Sanderson agreed with Blasier that there may be civil ramifications.

He said it is unlikely his supervisors would overrule his recommendation not to prosecute.

The report caps a three - month investigation into the board's management practices, many of which were critically highlighted in a special state audit.

The question of possible conflict of interest and fraud on the part of Fair Manager Larry Gately and Fair Board President John Jawad were raised in that audit, released last December.

However, the district attorney's report to the attorney general's office said a three - month investigation found no evidence of any attempt at personal gain at public expense.

The few details released did say that good evidence of improper management exists, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert Blasier.

When the audit was released it accused Gately of several improprieties including:

— Accepting an automobile for personal use in exchange for allowing the use of fair property.

— Circumventing required payroll reporting procedures to conceal that Gately employed four part-time employes, including his son, for more days than allowed by law.

— Using state funds to purchase property for personal use.

The audit also criticized Gately's failure to record verbal agreements to trade state services, materials and equipment for similar items from private individuals.

Officially known as the Board of Directors of the 21st Agricultural Association, the board is a state agency.

Gately defended his practices last December telling reporters that he was trying to save the state money through "informal horseswapping," although he confirmed some of the information leading to the auditor's allegations.

He denied he received monetary compensation from sale, rental or use of state property or equipment under question.

Wait-see attitude on COVA

PLEASANTON — The city council voted 3-2 to go ahead with the LAVWMA pipeline and 3-2 to try to keep Congress of Valley Agencies afloat Monday night.

The vote on the pipeline was Pleasanton's formal okay for a joint powers agreement to finance the pipeline. Council Members William Herlihy and Frank Brandes voted against the action. Herlihy said he thought the decision to finance a LAVWMA solution to its wastewater problem should go to the voters. Brandes said nothing, but consistently has said other alternatives also should be investigated and voters should have a right to decide LAVWMA financing.

On the COVA issue, Council Member Joyce LeClaire moved for Pleasanton to drop out of the organization. Livermore already has announced its intention to do so. Council Member Frank Brandes voted with her.

Council Member Ken Mercer persuaded the majority to at least wait until after the next COVA meeting to see what form the Valley wide planning forum might take. He thinks there are some Valley wide concerns like transportation which can still be served by COVA.

Dublin seminar this morning on energy, water conserving

DUBLIN — The "Conservation Crisis" will be dealt with by the California Park and Recreation Society (CPRS) during a seminar today at Shannon Park Community Center in Dublin from 9:30 a.m. until 1 noon.

According to committee members Christine Schnitzer and Gary Hultberg, a panel of experts will offer insights and suggest methods of conservation.

Schnitzer is recreation supervisor at Shannon Park which is sponsored by the Valley Community Services District (VCSD). Hultberg is employed by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD).

Problems pertaining to natural gas, electricity and water shortages as they relate to public agencies will be the primary topic at th seminar.

Panel members will include Commissioner Richard Gravelle from the Public Utilities Commission (PUC), Conservation Planner Richard Deus of Pacific Gas and Electric (PG&E) and Assistant General Manager Leroy Jorgensen from East Bay Municipal Utilities District (EBMUD).

Jim Battersby, general supervisor for the Oakland Office of Parks and Recreation, will provide a special report on the CPRS Legislative Committee's "Conservation Ethic."

This ethic was recently developed following meetings with state legislators and the State Water Resources Department in Sacramento.

It's 10 points include:

1. CPRS should aggressively promote the conservation of water by parks and recreation agencies and the public in California.

2. CPRS urges all parks and recreation agencies in California to voluntarily reduce the consumption of water for their facilities and programs. We recommend that agencies establish a reduction goal of at least 25 per cent.

3. CPRS opposes a statewide, mandatory water rationing program that would establish unrealistic and unnecessary restrictions on some areas of the state, and establish inadequate goals for other areas. CPRS supports a voluntary approach that promotes a permanent "conservation ethic" in California.

4. CPRS should sponsor or support legislation designed to promote long range water conservation programs which would provide "pilot project" grant monies to park and recreation agencies for water conservation through innovative approaches to park design, maintenance, and operation.

5. CPRS supports legislation that would provide state funds for the purpose of purchasing and distributing water conservation devices to households throughout California.

6. CPRS should develop guidelines to assist local park and recreation agencies in developing priorities for water usage within their departments.

7. CPRS should provide information to parks and recreation agencies to assist them in justifying the continuance of high priority recreation programs. Agencies should involve the public in setting these priorities.

8. CPRS should develop a water conservation information program for park and recreation agencies in California including information on specific conservation measures, alternate water sources, available funding.

9. CPRS should provide, on a statewide basis and through CPRS districts and local agencies, information to the public on water conservation, especially as it relates to lawn and garden irrigation.

10. CPRS urges park and recreation agencies to begin considering and planning alternative recreation programs during drought situations. CPRS should serve as a "clearing house" for innovative approaches. — by Sue Vogelsanger

Band battle set

LIVERMORE — A "Battle of the Bands" will fill Granada High's gym with dance music Friday evening.

Rock groups Catalist, Bay Rum, Fusion and Southbound are featured in the "battle," with a special guest appearance by the Vic Trigger Band.

Hours are 7 p.m. to midnight; tickets, $2 with student body card, $2.50 per person without.

Sex education films billed

LIVERMORE — Local parents are invited to preview two sex education films tonight which are to be shown to local students.

The films are the 29 - minute "Breast Cancer: Where We Are" and "For a Wonderful Life," (13 minutes) concerning the importance of the Pap test for cervical cancer.

They will be shown at 7:30 tonight in the multipurpose room of East Avenue School, 3951 East Ave. The films are being made available through the American Cancer Society.

Endorses new public housing

The International Longshore and Warehouseman's Union Auxiliary has gone on record in favor of the Dublin referendum May 31 which seeks replacement of Komandorski Village with new housing.

Dawn Rutter of Dublin, the group's president, notified Pleasanton Housing Authority Executive Secretary Michael Parsons of the action recently.

The group's letter said that Valley Community Services District should award sewer connections to the new project. The housing project has been in existence since World War II and it no longer should be considered "temporary," said Rutter. VCSD has contended that the PHA should lose all 176 or so "temporary" sewer connections and have to apply for new connections when it builds its replacement housing.

"Komandorski Village is a lighted tenement such as we deplore in other areas of the United States and yet allow to exist in our own backyard," said Rutter. "Low rent housing is essential and keeping it in key with the rest of the community is also essential. If you have ever been in these apartments, you know they ought to have been replaced a long time ago."

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

Pipeline formalities tonight

DUBLIN — Most "loose ends" that have prevented implementation of the Valley's sewage disposal pipeline project will be tied up tonight at a meeting of the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA).

Formal resolutions stating that a 22-mile, 15.62 million gallon per day (mgd) pipeline will be built across Dublin Canyon, to tie in with the cooperative "super-sewer" project, will be signed tonight. Amendments to the joint powers agreement which would allow the project to proceed will be offered, and engineers CH2M Hill of San Francisco will be directed to begin design of the $38 million project.

The joint board will authorize a request that the state provide funds for a study of wastewater reclamation/reuse alternatives that could begin by summer. LAVWMA will also ask the state to consider funding a pilot demineralization program with the Valley as top applicant.

LAVWMA selected the Dublin Canyon pipeline route March 30. The Valley is under the gun to stop dumping sewage into Alameda Creek because it pollutes Fremont's fresh water supplies.

Despite criticism that the same project had been defeated decisively by voters last November and was considered costly in energy requirements, the Dublin Canyon route was selected because of its low capital cost and guarantee of 87.5 per cent government grant funding.

Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District has warned that the project, which would continue spray irrigation of reclaimed water onto Valley land, would slowly degrade the underground water supply used as reserve storage.

Zone 7 technically has responsibility for wastewater management but has, until now, allowed LAVWMA to proceed with its pipeline plans without interference.

Terms of a memo of understanding between the two agencies, which they never signed due to last minute differences, stated that LAVWMA could assume wastewater management if no degradation of the groundwater resulted from its actions.

Zone 7 directors Robert Pearson and Richard Ryon recently said that if the project is allowed to continue as planned, Zone 7 "might as well close up shop."

Members of the Zone 7 board said that their inquiries into the project's progress have not been answered. LAVWMA members charge that the Zone board was not interested until lately, after most decisions had already been made.

LAVWMA convenes its meeting tonight at 5 p.m. in the Valley Community Services District Board Room, 7051 Dublin Blvd.

— by Bill Cauble

County news letters seen

OAKLAND — Voters throughout the county will get two non - political news letters in the mail each year if county supervisors agree to tentative plans offered this week by north county Supervisor John George.

With cautious approval of fellow board members, Gorg said he wants the county to pay for mailings to all registered voter households in the county, or to those chosen from "some other list as (county administrator) Loren Enoch may recommend.

To stave off petty politicking, he said letters from a supervisor up for reelection would not go out in the year of election until after final balloting.

Latitude would be given supervisors so that each city in their district might get special letters.

While essentially approving of the idea Valley representative Valerie Raymond said she wants "some assurance the letters won't be used as political documents."

Those conditions already are a matter of state law, said County Counsel Richard Moore.

"I go along with the concept," said board chairman Charles Santana, "but I'd like to continue the discussion next week."

The board will discuss it further at next Tuesday's meeting.

Dublin School Book Fair soon

DUBLIN — Dublin School PTA is sponsoring a Book Fair April 19 to 22.

Students will view the selection during the school day and parents will have the opportunity to browse through the books at Open House Tuesday, April 19. Books are priced from 95 cents, and proceeds from the Book Fair will be used to purchase books for the library and teaching aids.

A brief PTA unit meeting will be held prior to Open House for nominating and electing officers to serve on the PTA Board for 1977-78. Refreshments will be available during Open House for a nominal donation. Proceeds will be donated to the Outdoor Education Fund.
